Community Resource Centres

Community Resource Centres are friendly, locally owned and operated service and information centres, where you can:

- Use the internet for email, online banking, accommodation bookings and more
- Hold a face-to-face video conference to anywhere in the world
- Enrol in a course
- Download and print digital photos
- Use a photocopier or send a fax

Community Resource Centres provide local access to a range of services otherwise not readily available to smaller regional communities. Many centres are Centrelink or Medicare agents with others running a bank, post office and visitor centre or all of the above.

With Community Resource Centres located in more than 100 communities throughout Western Australia you’re never far from your Community Resource Centre, which means you’re never far from home or the office.
