GROW BETTER APPLES, GET MORE OF THEM
BY CONTROLLING CURCULIO BEETLES WITH

DIELDRIN CONCENTRATE (15%)

Don't let Curculios damage your apple crops this season! The minute you see the symptoms — which are: a carpet of leaves under your trees, leaves eaten around the edges, ring-barked apple stems, buds and spurs — get to work with Shell Dieldrin Concentrate (15%) and stop this weevil from destroying your crop. Curculios lay their eggs on or under the soil during the autumn, they hatch after winter rains and, during November and December, the adult weevils commence feeding.

A foliage spray of 0.05% dieldrin will give good results, but it is preferable to spray the butt and main fork of all trees with a concentration of 0.5% dieldrin, also spraying the soil below the spread of the tree and turning the soil after the application.

Spraying should be done late November or early December so that the Curculios are killed before egg-laying commences.
